

Stephen Tolouse's reminiscences of Windows 95 RTM day

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20060126-14

January 26, 2006

Raymond Chen

Stephen Tolouse (known around Microsoft as “stepto”, pronounced “step-toe”) from the Microsoft Security Response Center reminisces about Windows 95 RTM.

Stephen mentions that “the build numbers were artificially inflated to reach 950”. There’s actually a technical reason for this inflation, which I intend to write about when I have the time to give the topic the treatment it deserves.

Raymond Chen

Follow

