

Microspeak: Sit in it!

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20070307-00

March 7, 2007

Raymond Chen

The title of this entry is a bad pun on a catchphrase from 1970s television. I apologize to those for whom the 1970s are a bad memory. A snippet of Microspeak that bothers me is the verb phrase “to sit in”. Example: “I’m in the Nosebleed group which sits in Bob Smith’s organization.”

I think it means “to be a part of” but I’m not quite sure. Maybe it just means that they’re there temporarily until they can find a more permanent “seating assignment.”

Raymond Chen

Follow

