

Consider the environment: Do you want a receipt?

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20180702-00

July 2, 2018

Raymond Chen

Microsoft dining services installed a self-service store in our building. After you complete your transaction, the kiosk reminds you to consider the environment and asks if you want a receipt.

If you say, “No receipt”, it spits out a blank piece of paper.

So I guess technically you didn’t get a receipt.

(The problem has since been fixed.)

Bonus chatter: One of my friends has an ATM at her workplace that reminds you to consider the environment and asks you if you want a receipt. If you say “Yes”, it tells you that the ATM doesn’t print receipts.

Raymond Chen

Follow

